Possible Steps To Avert Steel Strike Studied

Federal Efforts To Settle Dispute Are Suspended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration Wednesday stepped up a study of alternative proposals to Congress to cope with the threat of a renewed steel strike.

All the plans are considered drastic unwelcome forms of government intervention. Yet the underlying reasoning is the nation's economy cannot stand any lengthy resumption of the 116-day steel strike when the present 80-day Taft-Hartley injunction expires Jan. 26.

Proposals being considered range from plans to authorize a new strike-banning injunction to government seizure, compulsory arbitration, public recommendations of several techniques.

Officials, in outlining these possibilities, emphasized that none of them has been settled upon yet, but all are being actively considered in talks involving the Labor, Justice and Commerce departments and the White House.

Mediator Suspends Efforts

Although there is no present prospect of any settlement before Jan. 26, the administration hopes that pressures on both sides—as a renewed strike threat looms and with the uncertainty of what Congress may well do about it—will compel an agreement.

Director Joseph F. Finnegan of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service said in a statement Wednesday steel management and labor are so busy electioneering for a scheduled Jan. 11-13 poll among the half-million United Steelworkers of America that no further government peace moves are now in prospect.

The industry hopes the workers will endorse their settlement offer, while the union is campaigning for a heavy negative vote to strengthen its hand.

Possible Legislation

Even though stopping strikes by legislation is a thorny legal and political course, informed sources said these are some of the steps being considered:

1. A new injunction, possibly of indefinite duration. That in effect would be a complete strike ban in steel, and might be accompanied by a requirement that the industry apply the eventual settlement terms to the start of the new injunction.

2. Compulsory arbitration. Have Congress or a group of public figures fix settlement terms which both sides would be required to accept.

3. Public recommendations. This could be done by a congressional committee or some outside group. It would be hard for either side to turn down such recommendations made with governmental backing.

4. Seizure. The government would operate the industry, with workers required to work at the same wages and the industry at a fixed profit margin, with excess profits devoted to reducing prices.

Priest Murdered

VIETIANE, Laos (AP) — Pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels broke into a Roman Catholic mission near Pakse Dec. 19 and murdered a French priest, Catholic sources said Wednesday.

Tiger Is Victor

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dick Tiger, British Empire middleweight champion, Wednesday bulldied his way past the long range defenses of Holly Mims by the sixth round to build up enough points for a 10-round split decision over the Baltimore veteran.

Sen. Humphrey Puts Himself In Demo Race

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) stepped off briskly Wednesday on an admittedly uphill climb toward the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination.

The 48-year-old Minnesota senator said the Democrats will win next year only if they nominate a spokesman of the common man "and I intend to be that spokesman."

But Humphrey said he has no illusions about his slim chance of getting the party nomination at the Los Angeles convention in July.

Humphrey left it unsaid, but it was obvious to all at a crowded news conference that his hope lay in a convention stalemate from which he conceivably might emerge as the nominee.

As the first of prominently mentioned aspirants to jump formally into the race, Humphrey said his name will go on primary ballots in Wisconsin April 5, the District of Columbia May 3, Oregon May 20, and South Dakota June 7.

In Wisconsin, he expects to run head on into Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), who is likely to put himself into the nomination race Saturday.

The Wisconsin test could be a sudden death affair for Humphrey. Unless he beats Kennedy in that Midwest state, the Minnesota senator has indicated he may abandon the effort and devote full time to running for re-election to the Senate.

The Humphrey strategy aims at capturing the delegates from Minnesota, Wisconsin and South Dakota—his native state—to form the nucleus of a Midwest bloc he hopes will give him at least 150 convention votes on the first ballot. That would be about 10 percent of the total.

He then would hope for a stalemate—although that's also believed to be the strategy of several of the as-yet unannounced Democratic possibilities such as Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, and possibly Adlai E. Stevenson.

Prompt Reply To Invitation Pleases West

First Of Possible Series Of Big Four Meets Set In Paris

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union quickly agreed Wednesday to open the first of what may be a series of summit conferences May 16 in Paris, a date proposed by the West.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev in letters to Britain, France and the United States, "noted with satisfaction" that a date and place had been definitely agreed upon, said Tass, the Soviet news agency. He previously had agreed to Paris as a site but suggested other dates.

Time and place thus were settled 13 months after Khrushchev made such a meeting a probability by demanding that the U.S., British and French garrisons get out of West Berlin.

Gromyko Delivers Letters

Khrushchev's letters were delivered to the U.S., British and French ambassadors by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. Letters from President Eisenhower, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and French President Charles de Gaulle suggesting May 16 were handed to the Foreign Ministry Tuesday.

Khrushchev's answer cleared away underbrush on time and place which has been accumulating since Dec. 21 when Eisenhower, Macmillan and de Gaulle, meeting in Paris, invited Khrushchev to a summit meeting.

They proposed to discuss disarmament, the question of Germany including Berlin, and a general topic called East-West relations.

West Suggests Summit Series

The Western invitation suggested a whole series of summits by saying other such meetings might be held "from time to time."

Khrushchev, affirming Soviet contentions that differences could be attacked most efficiently in top-level meetings, quickly accepted Paris as a site on Christmas Day.

The possibility that Khrushchev was angling for a summit meeting arose immediately after his declaration on Thanksgiving Day, 1958, that the Western powers had six months to agree to end the occupation status of Berlin.

He proposed that West Berlin be made a free city, and threatened to turn Soviet responsibilities in East Berlin over to East Germany. The Soviet Union later dropped the ultimatum.

His wife, Joan, has come to his aid with semaphore flags. From the mainland two miles away, she's been signaling what the dentist orders for the aching tooth.

Fateful Fifties End At Midnight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Fateful Fifties gave way at midnight to what could be the Soaring Sixties.

The new year—and new decade—arrived on a note of hope for a melting of the ice in the cold war that has plagued the world with tensions and antagonisms since the end of World War II.

President Eisenhower's warm reception on his overseas mission of good will and peace, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's sounding of the same theme on his visit to the United States, the forthcoming summit conference—all give a glimmer of possibly better days ahead.

As though to sound the keynote, carillons of peace will ring in Washington. The capital's annual Pageant of Peace will close with singing by the Greek Orthodox cathedral choir in the ellipse behind the White House.

The President is spending New Year's Day at Augusta, Ga. Some somber notes marked the end of 1959.

The months-long dispute between labor and management in the steel industry and its possible strong impact on the nation's economy still was unsettled.

In faraway Formosa, the Nationalist Chinese navy girded for a possible Chinese Communist attack during the holidays.

In the Middle East and elsewhere there were still unresolved problems. Yet the willingness of the West and the Soviet Union to at least talk led to a generally optimistic atmosphere.

For the devout, traditional watch night services were scheduled in Protestant and Catholic houses of worship.

For those who like to greet the new year with a shout, there dancing.

were opportunities available at virtually any price.

New Yorkers could pay up to $70 a couple at night spots—plus taxes, drinks, and tips to waiters, hatcheck girls and washroom attendants.

The usual crowds were expected to jam Times Square to watch a lighted globe atop the New York Times tower plummet at the midnight moment that 1960 takes over from 1959.

Some locales had their own types of celebrations differing from others.

In Prairie du Rocher in Illinois, a New Year's Eve custom of old French settlements will be reenacted. Celebrators in the Mississippi River town will don old costumes and serenade homes uninvited in the town square.

The townspeople will gather later at a hall for feasting and dancing.

Flood-Lashed Town Declared Disaster Area

HULL, Mass. (AP)—This coastal town, 12 miles south of Boston, was declared a disaster area Wednesday after taking a two-day lashing from storm-whipped, flooding tides.

Belted Tuesday by the highest tide of a century, the beach community was hit Tuesday night and again Wednesday by less ponderous smashes but found sections under a murky swirl of five feet of ocean water.

The Red Cross declared the town a disaster area after state and town health officials agreed there was a health emergency.

Approximately 250 families were driven out of the Hull area where flooded sections covered an area two and a half miles by one mile. Scores of cesspools overflowed and state health experts after viewing the area, warned residents to remain away for at least a week. All have temporary housing with relatives or friends.

A casualty insurance company spokesman said none of the storm damage—estimated to run into the millions—is covered by insurance. Along the New England coast the Northeast storm of Tuesday left its mark. Cottages and many fine year-round homes were smashed by high waves.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Thousands of suburban and rural homes in western New York remained powerless Wednesday as work crews pushed ahead with the exhausting job of repairing electric lines tumbled by Monday night's sleet.

As the effects of the worst ice storm in recent western New York history continued into the third day, householders not dependent on electricity for heat or cooking once more opened their homes to neighbors.

Brockport's town hall, where 1,500 ate Tuesday night, was reopened for dinner. And again in Churchillville, Webster and Hilton—hard-hit Rochester suburbs—heated schools, churches and club halls became hotels for the night.

Tons of ice still gripped trees and power lines, despite intermittent sunshine Wednesday. This held out the threat of a second blackout should a strong breeze develop.

Cigarette Production Record Set In 1959

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Agriculture Department estimated Wednesday that a record 488 billion cigarettes were produced in the United States in 1959, 4 percent more than in 1958, despite new government cancer warnings.

The department said smokers paid a record $6,800,000,000 for tobacco products in 1959, 7 percent above 1958. Federal and state taxes accounted for 40 percent of the total expenditures.

Spurned By Girl, Man's Revenge Plan Boomerangs

TORONTO (AP) — William Shaver, 23, admitted in court that when an 18-year-old girl spurned him he sent Christmas cards signed with her name to all men in her office asking them to date her and wrote a letter to her boss saying "Leave my sister alone, punk. You're married and have a couple of brats—if you don't I'll kill you." Shaver pleaded guilty to sending a threatening letter and was fined $100.

Maine's Demo Governor Dies

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI)—Democratic Gov. Clinton A. Clauson died in his sleep early Wednesday and Republican State Senate President John H. Reed of Fort Fairfield was to be sworn in as governor Wednesday night.

Reed, 38-year-old wealthy potato grower, will serve until January, 1961. A special election will be held in 1960, the winner to serve out the remaining two years of Clauson's first term.

An Iowa farm boy who migrated to Maine 40 years ago, Clauson died at the age of 64 and at the peak of his 20-year political career. He had come to Maine as a chiropractor and practiced 20 years.

Death came to the handsome, congenial governor in his sleep after he attended a banquet in Lewiston. He was in excellent spirits at the dinner and appeared in good health, according to his press secretary, John E. Byrne.

A doctor tentatively attributed Clauson's death to a heart attack or stroke although the governor had no history of heart trouble.

Errant Loco Chased 70 Miles

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—Little old 240, an ugly duckling as far as locomotives go, sallied forth to see the world Wednesday.

The squat little diesel, assigned to the unglamorous task of switching cars in the yard, clipped off nearly 70 miles through the Virginia countryside without anyone in its cab before pursuing trainmen could corral it.

Nobody got hurt. A companion switch engine bound on the same trip pooped out.

The mystery of how they got started on their errant ways puzzled several investigators, including the FBI which said it was checking to see if any federal laws had been violated.

The train company hinted that someone deliberately sent them on their way.

The two engines were parked side by side in the yards of the

Ike Will Deliver State Of Union Message Jan. 7

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—President Eisenhower will outline his legislative program for the 1960 presidential election year to a joint session of Congress Jan. 7, it was announced Wednesday.

That program will be sketched out in his annual State of the Union message which he will deliver in person to the Democratic-led Congress a day after the lawmakers reconvene.

Later presidential messages will spell out the administration program in greater detail. Wednesday's announcement from the vacation White House said the budget message would go to Congress Jan. 18 and the President's annual economic report on Jan. 20.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said there also would be other special messages sent to Congress on still undetermined dates. He said one of these certainly would deal with farm legislation—an issue which has kept the administration in conflict with the Democratic majority in Congress for the past five years.

The timetable for the principal messages to Congress was announced after Eisenhower worked on his State of the Union message about two and one-half hours with two aides. They were Presidential Assistant Wilton B. Persons and Dr. Malcolm Moos, a presidential speech writer, who both made the round trip from Washington Wednesday by air.

Hagerty said the President would appear before the joint session of House and Senate Jan. 7 at about 12:30 p. m., e.s.t., and that the speech would run more than half an hour. Along with an outline of the administration legislative program, the message expected to include a report on Eisenhower's good will trip earlier this month to 11 nations.

South Korean Vessel Named In 'Piracy Act'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union charged Wednesday night that a South Korean warship fired on an unarmed Soviet ship off North Korea, seriously damaging her and inflicting casualties among the crew.

Calling the attack an act of piracy on the high seas, the official Tass news agency in an authorized statement threatened the destruction of any ships engaging in similar attacks in the future.

(In Seoul, the South Korean navy and coast guard both denied any of their ships had fired on a Russian vessel off North Korea last Monday. One naval officer said South Korean ships had seen gunfire in the area where the Russians charged the action took place but added it might have involved ships from Communist North Korea.)

Tass said the Soviet hydrographic vessel Ungo was fired upon Dec. 28 at a point about 30 miles off the coast of North Korea and 36 miles northeast of the South Korean boundary.

The attacker, the agency said, was a South Korean warship of the "big hunter type, No. 205."

Former U. S. Sub Chaser

(Presumably this was a former U.S. Navy submarine chaser of 251 tons displacement carrying 40 mm. and two 20 mm. guns, turned over to the South Koreans. Janes, authoritative manual on navies, lists No. 205 in the Korean Navy as such a ship.)

Tass said the warship turned after firing its shots and sailed toward South Korean waters, accompanied by two similar warships which remained at a distance.

Tass did not describe the mission of the Soviet ship Ungo in the area. She was operating in waters not far from the course used in repatriating Koreans from Japan to North Korea.

Soviet Vessels Hold

Two Soviet ships, the Kryllon and Tobolsk, are being used to ferry the repatriates. South Korea has threatened to use force if necessary to prevent the migration.

(The action was the second reported in three days involving South Korean warships. Seoul newspapers reported that a South Korean coast guard boat exchanged shots with eight armed Red Chinese fishing vessels Monday in the Yellow Sea, far from the Soviet ship incident.)

Lie Test "Clears" Widow In Slaying

PAINESVILLE, O. (UPI)—The county prosecutor said Wednesday a lie detector test showed that Mrs. Lois Clark "neither perpetrated nor collaborated in" the Christmas Eve sniper slaying of her husband. But he said he was still bothered by discrepancies in her story.

Prosecutor Edward R. Ostrander said he was convinced the former model spoke the truth when she said she did not know who the sniper was who shot through the window of her home in suburban Mentor, killing Scoutmaster Charles Clark, 34, an engineer.

The victim's father hinted darkly that his son was killed because he was engaged in secret government defense work.

The father, Carl Clark, 52, a Rochester, N. Y. bus driver, demanded the FBI take over the investigation in the mysterious slaying.

New Anti-Jew Outbreak Hits West Germany

BRUNSWICK, Germany (AP)—Another outbreak of anti-Jewish incidents hit West Germany Wednesday and authorities began cracking down on rightists.

Police in North Rhine-Westphalia confiscated 17,000 copies of the Reichsruf, weekly organ of the neo-Nazi Reich party.

Interior Minister Gerhard Schroeder announced the federal government will reinvestigate the Reich party to determine if the Federal Constitutional Court should be asked to ban it.

Two Reich party members have confessed to smearing swastikas and anti-Jewish slogans on the new synagogue at Cologne on Christmas Eve, the first of the new series of incidents. A third party member has been arrested for masterminding the incident, police said.

In the latest series of incidents to be reported, swastikas and slogans saying "death to the Jews" and "out with the Jews" were painted on Brunswick's monument for war dead and victims of Nazism.

Police at Rheydt said windows of several shops there, one owned by a Jew, had been smeared with Hitler symbols on Christmas night. A Jewish shopkeeper said the word "pig" was painted on his window.

In Hesse, an 85-year-old Jewish survivor of the Resienstadt—Terezin—concentration camp was anonymously threatened with crucifixion, state authorities said.

In Offenbach, near Frankfurt, a half-Jewish resident reported that swastikas and the word "Jew" were scratched on his car.

Swastikas appeared on a Roman Catholic church in the Ruhr city of Gelsenkirchen. Authorities suspected the incident was connected with the anti-Semitic campaign.

A special commission was set up in the North Rhine-Westphalia Interior Ministry to investigate anti-Semitic defacings in various cities.

The timetable for the principal messages to Congress was announced after Eisenhower worked on his State of the Union message about two and one-half hours with two aides. They were Presidential Assistant Wilton B. Persons and Dr. Malcolm Moos, a presidential speech writer, who both made the round trip from Washington Wednesday by air.

Hagerty said the President would appear before the joint session of House and Senate Jan. 7 at about 12:30 p. m., e.s.t., and that the speech would run more than half an hour. Along with an outline of the administration legislative program, the message expected to include a report on Eisenhower's good will trip earlier this month to 11 nations.

South Korean Vessel Named In 'Piracy Act'

Tass Says Unarmed Hydrographic Ship Seriously Damaged

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union charged Wednesday night that a South Korean warship fired on an unarmed Soviet ship off North Korea, seriously damaging her and inflicting casualties among the crew.

Calling the attack an act of piracy on the high seas, the official Tass news agency in an authorized statement threatened the destruction of any ships engaging in similar attacks in the future.

In Seoul, the South Korean navy and coast guard both denied any of their ships had fired on a Russian vessel off North Korea last Monday. One naval officer said South Korean ships had seen gunfire in the area where the Russians charged the action took place but added it might have involved ships from Communist North Korea.

Tass said the Soviet hydrographic vessel Ungo was fired upon Dec. 28 at a point about 30 miles off the coast of North Korea and 36 miles northeast of the South Korean boundary.

The attacker, the agency said, was a South Korean warship of the "big hunter type, No. 205."

Former U. S. Sub Chaser

(Presumably this was a former U.S. Navy submarine chaser of 251 tons displacement carrying one 40 mm. and two 20 mm. guns, turned over to the South Koreans. James, authoritative manual on navies, lists No. 205 in the Korean Navy as such a ship.)

Tass said the warship turned after firing its shots and sailed toward South Korean waters, accompanied by two similar warships which remained at a distance.

Tass did not describe the mission of the Soviet ship Ungo in the area. She was operating in waters not far from the course used in repatriating Koreans from Japan to North Korea.

Soviet Vessels Hold

Two Soviet ships, the Kryllon and Tobolsk, are being used to ferry the repatriates. South Korea has threatened to use force if necessary to prevent the migration.

(The action was the second reported in three days involving South Korean warships. Seoul newspapers reported that a South Korean coast guard boat exchanged shots with eight armed Red Chinese fishing vessels Monday in the Yellow Sea, far from the Soviet ship incident.)

Lie Test "Clears" Widow In Slaying

PAINESVILLE, O. (UPI)—The county prosecutor said Wednesday a lie detector test showed that Mrs. Lois Clark "neither perpetrated nor collaborated in" the Christmas Eve sniper slaying of her husband. But he said he was still bothered by discrepancies in her story.

Prosecutor Edward R. Ostrander said he was convinced the former model spoke the truth when she said she did not know who the sniper was who shot through the window of her home in suburban Mentor, killing Southmaster Charles Clark, 34, an engineer.

The victim's father hinted darkly that his son was killed because he was engaged in secret government defense work.

The father, Carl Clark, 52, a Rochester, N. Y. bus driver, demanded the FBI take over the investigation in the mysterious slaying.

Errant Loco Chased 70 Miles

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—Little old 240, an ugly duckling as far as locomotives go, sallied forth to see the world Wednesday.

The squat little diesel, assigned to the unglamorous task of switching cars in the yard, clipped off nearly 70 miles through the Virginia countryside without anyone in its cab before pursuing trainmen could corral it.

Nobody got hurt. A companion switch engine bound on the same trip popped out.

The mystery of how they got started on their errant ways puzzled several investigators, including the FBI which said it was checking to see if any federal laws had been violated.

The train company hinted that someone deliberately sent them on their way.

The two engines were parked side by side in the yards of the Atlantic Coast Line here well before dawn. Their crews were not due for several hours. Startled trainmen looked and saw the two engines were gone. A train agent solemnly called Richmond police to report them missing.

About the same time, the rival Chesapeake and Ohio Railway's warning system flashed a warning that a train was on C&O tracks which parallel the James River and roll to the west from Richmond through hills and farmland. No trains were scheduled at the hour and the C&O put out an order for other trains to stay off the track.

Meanwhile, the first engine was found sitting quietly on a railroad trestle over the James.

Little old 240 had more power and chugged on through a switch of the C&O and headed west at a steady 25 miles per hour.

C&O Road Foreman J. A. Nut-

tycombe and Trainmaster J. F. Bickers, routed out of bed, were assigned to catch the errant locomotive. Boarding of their own switch engines, they pulled alongside on the parallel tracks.

Nuttycombe said they decided to use a long pole-like hook to smash the window and close 240's throttle and try to lock the brake.

Little 240 was picking up speed. By now it was doing about 30. It was Nuttycombe, hanging on the side of his own C&O engine, who reached the 3 or 4 feet across the tracks and smashed the window and managed to close the throttle.

The runaway engine ground to a halt near Strathmore, Va., 68 rail miles from its parking space in the ACL yards in Richmond. Nuttycombe had to jump across to the errant engine from his own as it slowed down to bring it to a halt.

Girl, 17, Back In Detroit To Renew Hunt For Dog

DETROIT (AP) — Judy Ferrin, 17, and it turns out Judy has lost a 17-year-old English girl whose something else, too—her passport, search for her missing dog has But U.S. immigration agents who made page-one news from Detroit had read of her previous, fruitless to London, came back to Detroit search for Judy okayed a new Wednesday night to renew her three-day look around for the girl search for her year-old Alsatian.

Judy arrived in the tow of two Toronto Star newsmen via the Ambassador Bridge from neighboring Windsor, Ont.

Judy said they would visit Detroit and suburban dog pounds Thursday.

This time Judy came by automobile, furnished by the Toronto newsmen. She didn't have to hitch-hike the 114 miles from St. Thomas, Ont., where she's visiting, and she had more than the $1 with which she arrived last Sunday for a two-day search in a big and strange city.

Judy got lost en route from Southampton, England, to St. Thomas via Detroit.

Front-page publicity in Detroit of the girl's fruitless search Sunday and Monday has resulted in scores of calls from Detroiters who thought they may have found Judy.

Pastors Urged To Make Their Sermons Live

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Kansas minister told fellow Methodist pastors Wednesday that "the unforgivable sin of the ministry is to take anything as fascinating as the New Testament and make it uninteresting."

The Rev. Dr. Ronald Meredith, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Wichita, spoke at the week-long program observing the 175th anniversary of Methodism in the United States.

"As preachers today the Bible keeps us to the great themes of sin, salvation, the cross, God and immortality," he said. "It gives us dramatic, illustrative material to make our sermons march."

The faith of our fathers, he said, made them examine themselves, the Bible and the world.

"The fathers not only possessed the Bible, but they were possessed by it."

Then he interjected: "What great preachers those pioneers, would have been if they could have seen just one chapter of 'Gunsmoke' on one of our boob tubes."

The Rev. Dr. Dow Kirkpatrick, pastor of St. Mark's Methodist Church, Atlanta, Ga., in the second in a series of three lectures on "Exploring our foundations," suggested that young ministers needed more discipline — and more freedom — to seek new ways to communicate their gospel to the people in a creative manner.

He said John Wesley, founder of Methodism, had both, and exercised both. Wesley's parents, Dr. Kirkpatrick said, were strict religious disciplinarians, yet he had the "remarkable ability to break away from traditions and formalities" while a minister in the high Anglican church.

"Wesley preached to coal miners in the field because he realized that they were not getting to the sanctuary. He broke many rules to communicate the Gospel to the people."

After lunch the 250 delegates from 31 states visited Mt. Olivet Cemetery, where Bishop Asbury, considered the father of the Methodist Church in this country, is buried.

100 Killed Daily In Auto Crashes

CHICAGO (AP) — Suppose that on each of the 365 days of 1959 a hundred or so persons lost their lives in an airplane crash, a theater fire, a flash flood or other disaster.

Shocking? Well, the figures are fact, the circumstances are different.

Because, slightly more than 100 persons were killed in automobile crashes each day this year.

The National Safety Council Wednesday placed the year's death toll at between 37,500 and 38,000 deaths. In addition, disabling injuries amounted to 1,400,000.

The council's figures were based on actual statistics for the first 11 months of the year and a projection of them through December.

The 1958 death toll was 36,981 deaths and 1,350,000 disabling injuries.

Two Hilgenberg Wills Are Filed

BALTIMORE (AP) — Two wills executed by William F. Hilgenberg, Baltimore civic leader and sportsman who died last week, were filed Wednesday in Orphans Court here.

Although major bequests in both sets of papers are the same, a problem was created by conflicting dates on the documents. Both provide for the estate to be held in trust for the benefit of Hilgenberg's widow and contain other provisions for the benefit of a sister, Miss Gertrude R. Hilgenberg.

One will dated Sept. 7, 1954, contains a codicil or supplement dated Dec. 16, 1958. The codicil refers to the 1954 will as Hilgenberg's "last will and testament."

Between those two dates are two other papers—a will executed May 24, 1955, and a codicil dated two days later.

One major problem stems from the fact that different executors are named in the two wills, each describing itself as Hilgenberg's "last."

There was no estimate or indication of the size of the estate.

Hilgenberg, 56, died unexpectedly Dec. 21.

He was State Banking Commissioner of Maryland and former head of the Baltimore board of fire commissioners.

A wholesale seafood dealer, he was also a member of the board of the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League.

Lodge Burns; Leap Saves Caretaker

SHERWOOD, Md. (AP) — A hunting lodge caretaker jumped from a window to safety early Wednesday as fire destroyed the building on Poplar Island three miles out in Chesapeake Bay from Sherwood.

State police said damage totaled $100,000. The lodge was owned by the North American Smelting Co. of Wilmington, Del.

John Dolan, 35, of Tilghman, the lone occupant of the lodge, leaped to safety.

Eastern Shore Poultry Industry Pioneer Dies

SALISBURY (AP) — Clinton E. Quillen, well-known Salisbury businessman and one of the pioneers of the poultry industry on the Eastern Shore, died unexpectedly Wednesday. He was 70 years old.

Quillen suffered a stroke and was rushed to Peninsula General Hospital. He died several hours later without regaining consciousness.

A native of Berlin, Md., he was one of the first to introduce and support the raising of poultry on the lower Shore. It since has grown into a multi-million dollar business.

He was president of the Salisbury Milling Co. and the Eastern Shore Building and Loan Assn., and vice president of the Berlin Milling Co. He also was a director of the Salisbury branch of the County Trust Co. and of the Peninsula Broadcasting Co., operators of WBOC-TV.

Drinking Toxic Solvent Blamed For 3 Deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — A third man, brother of an earlier victim, died Wednesday night from what police say may have been the result of drinking a toxic laboratory solvent obtained at the National Institutes of Health.

The latest victim, Marvin Ford, 33, an elevator operator at NIH, died at Walter Reed Army Medical Center. He resided with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence M. Ford of Washington, and another brother, Clarence, 31, who is under a physician's care at home for what was described as a virus attack.

The two earlier victims, both of whom died Tuesday, were Otto R. Saunders, 42, of Washington, and Marvin Ford's brother, Hugh A. Ford, a redcap at Honolulu's International Airport.

A fourth man remained in critical condition.

Saunders, an elevator operator at NIH, collapsed Monday on the job and died early Tuesday in District of Columbia General Hospital of "acute hemorrhagic pancreatitis."

Ford was taken unconscious from a transcontinental flight home at Los Angeles Tuesday and died within a few hours.

Critically ill at D. C. General Hospital was George D. Boone, 46, of Washington, employed in NIH's transportation division.

Detective Sgt. Lionel Couture said he obtained from NIH a gallon can from which Boone and Marvin Ford were seen filling a bottle Saturday in an area near the laboratory which uses the solvent. Boone is under treatment for acute alcoholism. All of the victims are Negroes.

Man Taunted Into Murder Kills Self

BRUNSWICK, Md. (AP) — Mrs. Alma Bernice Comer taunted Joseph Richard Wood that he didn't have the nerve to pull the gun trigger.

Wood fired once. It missed. He fired the 12 gauge shotgun again. Mrs. Comer toppled out of the chair dead. Wood then put the gun barrel into his mouth and pulled the trigger, killing himself.

State Trooper Douglas E. Rogers said the murder and suicide occurred in the kitchen of the little home of Harry Cole near Burkittsville early Wednesday.

The shooting followed arguments between the couple which started as they made the round of taverns in Brunswick Tuesday, Rogers said.

Rogers said Mrs. Comer, 34, of Brunswick, ordered Wood, 44, of Burkittsville, out of her car in Brunswick and then picked up several other men and women before starting to the Cole house.

In the meantime, Rogers said Wood hailed a taxicab and arrived at Cole's home before the others. One shot was fired in the air as the car drove up. Rogers added. The group went into the house where the argument con-

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Face The Year With Optimism!

Optimism is one of the most productive characteristics of the human being. It is also one of the most endearing qualities and one that cannot be stifled. I defy you tomorrow night, as you tear December off the thin calendar and cast your eyes upon January of the new one, to keep from feeling anticipation of the twelve unknown months that lie ahead.

The dominance and strength of this trait of optimism is attested to by the age of the custom of welcoming the New Year with celebration. Some historians tell us that the custom began with the ancient Romans.

In their hopefulness that the new year would be an improvement over the last, customs have varied with different peoples. The old Romans took the precaution of sending gifts to their senators at the beginning of the New Year, obviously in hope of inducing the local politicians to lean favorably in their direction in matters of government. Today such a practice would bring frowns from your fellow citizens who find it difficult to distinguish between pure generosity and purchased influences.

Some Indian tribes ready themselves for the New Year by burning all their old clothes and destroying their utensils in order to start the year fresh. And there is an old English practice of cleaning the chimney on New Year's Day so that Lady Luck may enter the home with clean skirts.

Most such customs grew out of some practical consideration of how to make the next year better. But I know of none more practical than those with which we currently celebrate the arrival of the New Year.

If you make carefully-thought-out resolutions (which you can and will keep) . . . wish your fellow man a better year (sincerely) . . . and join those around you in feasting and merriment (consistent with good health) to publicly affirm your conviction that improvement is ahead, the New Year is sure to be better. For then, to keep faith with what you acclaimed on New Year's, you will have to work toward making it better!

As the horns blow, the bells ring, and the clocks strike twelve tonight, the Powers Girls and I will be with you in spirit to wish you "A Happy New Year!" (Copyright 1959, John F. Dille Co.)

More Of Everything In The 1960s?

The U. S. economy, operating under the handicaps of inflation, is entering the 1960s which, along with the '70s, are expected to increase the nation's labor force by perhaps 28.5 million workers. By 1980 the country is expected to have a total of more than 100 million persons of working age.

By comparison, all the expansion of the '40s and '50s produced only 17.6 million additional workers, most of them women. In the 20 years ahead—it says here—a majority of the new workers will be males. These are figures projected by the U. S. Bureau of the Census and the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Can the U. S. economy absorb all these additional workers? Is it too much to expect that continuing expansion will create the jobs needed?

The bulletin Money Matters, published by the Institute of Life Insurance, says the answer depends upon the creation of capital and savings that can finance the necessary industrial expansion to create the millions of new jobs. There must also be the capital to finance the mortgages that will be necessary for the houses that more and more families will require.

All of which brings the observer full circle to a familiar conclusion. The great need now is for a stable dollar, one that will finance the expansion that is necessary for a growing population. Without stability there still may be more jobs—but what of the incentive to save?

It has persisted remarkably over recent years despite inflation. But will enough dollars be put away to finance future capital needs when their owners see buying power slide year after year?

New Jersey Politics

The fight inside the Republican Party in the State of New Jersey is a peculiar one. It is almost as significant as a general election.

One present United States Senator of New Jersey is Clifford P. Case who five years ago was elected by a small margin. Case had considerable backing from liberal elements in New York City, a large number of the New Jersey voters being New Yorkers who sleep in New Jersey. This bedroom vote is very significant in politics.

Case was supposed to be an Eisenhower Republican and was generally backed by President Eisenhower's supporters but Case's voting record in the Senate seems to follow the program of the Americans for Democratic Action rather than that of the Republican Party. Our political system makes that possible because our political parties are not disciplined organizations. A United States Senator represents the people of his state, not his political organization.

Nevertheless, it is peculiar that Senator Case who was elected as an Eisenhower Republican so often opposed the Eisenhower program and supported the A.D.A. program. As a matter of fact, Senator Case came closer to voting with Senator Jacob K. Javits than with President Eisenhower.

Case's attitude toward the Eisenhower program was particularly noticeable in the labor reform measures before Congress. Case generally opposed President Eisenhower and the Republican leadership in their effort to produce an effective measure. Of course, in mitigation of Case's record it is to be said that New Jersey is an industrial state and that the labor unions are very strong in that state; that Case was following the views of his constituency. On the other hand, the Republican Party, as such, had taken a stand on these measures and Case walked a tight rope. The elimination of Nelson Rockefeller as a candidate for the Republican nomination for President affects the fortunes of Senator Case seriously. The so-called liberal Republicans believed that Rockefeller would by one method or another win the nomination and that would mean a liberal re-orientation for the Republican Party, that that party would actually move to the Left of the Democratic Party should anyone be the Democratic Party candidate other than Adlai Stevenson.

Also many Republicans felt that if Nelson Rockefeller ran for President, they would be able to dip into the Rockefeller fortune for local campaign funds. The pro-Rockefeller movement in New Jersey never got off the ground. Had it emerged into any force at all, it would have been helpful to Case who has not developed an organization of his own during his term in the Senate. He, therefore, faces a contest for the nomination.

New Jersey is a small state but an important one because of its influence on New York State and on Pennsylvania. New Jersey is also an industrial state, many large industries whose business offices are in New York, having their factories in New Jersey. The interrelationship of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut is so tight in certain areas that they may now be regarded as interlocking states. The same is true of southern and western New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The elimination of Rockefeller will affect the politics of this entire area more than is visible to the unpolitical eye at the present time. It will affect the ultimate fortunes of Senator Jacob Javits of New York, perhaps not as sharply as it does Senator Case, because he is not running for re-election next year, but nonetheless he cannot be a stalwart of Vice President Nixon. Javits is a nominal Republican, moving opportunistically in any direction that suits him without regard to the national interests of the party which he represents in the Senate.

Vice President Nixon is likely to be rigid about party organization and party allegiance and view with a somewhat jaundiced eye those Republicans who can also be Democrats, A.D.A.ers and anything that's going. These Eastern seaboard states tend to breed that kind of politician in both political parties—politicians who go by polls rather than by principle; politicians who count the Irish-Catholic, Italian, Jewish, and Negro vote rather than consider the benefits to the whole United States of the course they follow.

'Wonder If They'll All Be This Tough?'

Rockefeller's Withdrawal: The Background

WASHINGTON

The background story of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's withdrawal from the Republican Presidential race has not yet been told. It is worth telling, too, because it indicates that what some Nixonites used to call "the Rockefeller problem" has not yet been completely solved.

The simple physical facts are sufficiently astonishing; for this decision which had the effect of a bombshell on December 26 had in reality been taken more than a fortnight earlier, before the Governor's departure on his last barnstorming tour on December 12.

Yet it can be stated on undoubted authority that this was just the way it happened. In the first days of December, in brief, the practical hopelessness of a Rockefeller bid for the Presidency had been proven beyond doubt. Polls in New Hampshire and other primary states, soundings of Republican leaders all over the country and many other tests, all gave the same results.

At this point, the Governor called in his three most intimate advisors, his long-time staff member, Frank Jamieson, the cool-headed New York National Committeeman, George Hinman, and the able "Time-Life" contributor and former White House speech-writer, Emmet Hughes. Rockefeller revealed to these three his inclination to withdraw his candidacy, and all three agreed.

Hughes was thereupon asked to prepare the first draft of a withdrawal statement. The Hughes draft was even stiffer than the final version in its suggestions that all was not absolutely well with Dwight D. Eisenhower's America. Some dilutions and deletions were in the end decided upon. It was further decided not to extend the circle of those in the know beyond New York State Chairman Judson Morehouse, until after Rockefeller's return from his seven-state political tour. And so the Governor departed, his statement written, his mind made up, to go through the exhausting motions of candidacy for the last time.

His success in doing so suggests the coolness of the customer behind the hearty, hand-shaking Rockefeller facade. As a result, security was so well preserved that Vice President Richard M. Nixon flatly refused to believe that his rival was really out of the race until he could read the actual text of the Rockefeller statement. This in itself makes the story a political curiosity.

By Joseph Alsop

But the story is significant as well as curious, because of the grounds on which Rockefeller made his final decision. He did not get out merely because he saw no hope of beating Nixon. Rockefeller had in fact seen almost no hope of beating Nixon at least from the beginning of November onwards. He merely ordered a last poll of New Hampshire to confirm his own estimate of the situation.

Meanwhile, throughout November, he played with the idea of contesting the New Hampshire and other primaries with the Vice President, not in order to win, but in order to make a record and to stake a claim. The

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

DEPUTY PRESIDENT?—President Eisenhower is not the first Chief Executive to express concern about the burdens of the Presidency, and there are indications that he may be preparing to do something about it.

As Mr. Eisenhower enters his last year in the White House, he seems to be approaching his job with a combination of increased activity and philosophical detachment.

On the one hand, he is undoubtedly taking a more active part in government affairs than at any previous time in his tenure. On the other, he seems to have come to some conclusions about the role of a President and is preparing to set up a more workable Administrative organization for his successors.

Over the last few days, news has been permitted to leak out that Mr. Eisenhower is in favor of a major reorganization of the Executive Branch of government. He appears to favor appointment of a First Secretary—a kind of deputy President with broad powers to negotiate with other governments, co-ordinate government policies and act as a substitute for the President when so assigned.

Mr. Eisenhower also favors creation of a sort of top administrative officer for the federal government who would rank above Cabinet level and would co-ordinate many of the federal programs which now overlap into several different departments and agencies.

The President's ideas are an obvious outgrowth of his own experience in the White House, particularly during the periods of his illnesses when the ceremonial and administrative details of his office came into focus.

What The House Call Tells The Physician

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Times change and so does the practice of medicine. Physicians save considerable time by seeing most of their patients in the office and hospital. This is in keeping with modern medical care, even though it is less convenient to the patient.

But I'm convinced that the physician who does not make house calls misses important information about his patient. He learns what the spouse looks like, how he behaves, and the attitude of the couple toward each other and the children. In two minutes the reason may be clear why a 40 year old woman is neurotic. Her husband is too demanding, a weakling, or an alcoholic.

The physician also determines whether good hygiene is practiced in the home to provide healthful surroundings. These factors are difficult to elicit or appreciate without personal observation and questioning. The information is most helpful in diagnosis, treatment, after care, and maintaining good health thereafter.

Our hospitals are crowded but many of these people do not need such expensive care. They could be treated at home at one-tenth the cost. We need more auxiliary help to make this possible, such as visiting nurses, part time housekeepers, and a catering service to bring food (like TV dinners) into the home. Some cities have a homemaker service in which a woman is sent into the home to care for the children and manage the household while the mother is ill.

Some medical schools send their students on house calls for training along this line. Many clinics are doing the same. A Boston university child psychiatrist assigns trained social workers into homes where a problem child has created an acute emergency. Hospitalization is avoided in many instances and family equilibrium is reestablished.

The strength of the family unit is the strength of America. It needs expert care in its own backyard.

Thailand's Prime Minister Predicts Red China Will Expand Southward

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's note—Though Drew Pearson is now back in Washington the following column on the mysterious moves of Red China was written while he was in the Far East.)

BANGKOK, Thailand — The land where the white elephant is sacred and where every elephant is the property of the king, is governed by a square-jawed but pleasant military man, Premier Sarit Thanarat, who took over when graft and inefficiency began to undermine the country last February.

I called on the Prime Minister and his Foreign Minister, Thanat Khoman, in the green and gold Cabinet room of the Prime Minister's palace—a palace with upturned Buddhist roof as picturesque as this little country of canals, rice paddies, and pleasant people. We sat on a huge golden divan with lavender orchids on the table in front of us and long, curving elephant tusks behind.

The Prime Minister had been sitting with his Cabinet most of the day and explained that in Thailand the Cabinet met early in the morning and concluded its sessions sometimes after dinner at night. However, he interrupted the session momentarily to receive me.

"We have been discussing taxes," he explained, "and taxes are a difficult problem in any country—especially when you want to increase them."

Because Thailand has kept its independence for more than one thousand years and because it is the headquarters for the SEATO pact against Red aggression in the Far East, I asked Premier Sarit—who is called by his first name—what he thought was behind the mysterious belligerency of Red China toward India, hitherto her best friend in the United Nations.

China Will Move

"Tibet," he replied. "Nehru was a little late in waking up to the danger of his Communist Chinese neighbors, but he did wake up with the conquest of Tibet. India reacted vigorously, and Peiping didn't like it."

"There has been considerable speculation among the leaders of Asia I have interviewed that Red China might move either south, or north into Siberia and Mongolia," I suggested. "Do you think she will do either?"

"China will move south," said General Sarit bluntly. "The country is more fertile south. He diplomatic moves in Burma and Indonesia right now are very significant."

"Furthermore, any move to the north would be difficult," he continued. "It would run squarely against the Chinese-Russian alliance. And while China doesn't need Russia any more, I don't think she would risk war with Russia."

"You can already see what's happening in Laos," he added. "That is the first objective of the Chinese Communists, and more objectives in the south will come later."

Precarious Thailand

I asked the Prime Minister about the precarious position of Thailand, with some of the most fertile rice fields in Asia lying right in the path of any Chinese push to the south.

"Our position is not easy," he admitted. "We are not far away. We have been subject to all sorts of pressures. But our policy is to keep strong, be loyal to our allies, and not flinch."

"Many think it's easy for us to take this position, but believe me it isn't," the Prime Minister continued. "Every day we are attacked by the Chinese over the North Vietnam radio because we are members of SEATO. We have found that merely being loyal to SEATO is not enough. We have to work at it."

I asked Sarit what kind of co-operation Thailand was getting from the United States in support of SEATO.

"Things are fine now," he said. "Why now?" I asked.

"Perhaps because we didn't make our wants known before," he replied.

At this point Foreign Minister Thanat, who served several years as Ambassador to the United Nations in New York, then as Ambassador to the United States in Washington, interjected the observation that relations between the United States and Thailand had always been good. "Back during your Civil War," he said, "our king offered some elephants to help out your government."

"What reports do you get from Red China regarding unrest and riots against the Communist government?" I asked.

"A lot of these reports are wishful thinking," the Foreign Minister replied. "Chinese returning from Communist China say the farmers don't like the communists, but there is no revolt. With a strong central government in firm control, the people are powerless, and we might as well face that fact."

Those are the views of two leaders of a free nation situated on the edge of the most populous country in the world—a country which has been making mysterious and menacing moves in the direction of its southern neighbors.

How Happy 1960?

By Leslie Gould

How happy will be the New Year—1960?

The answer to that for both the stock market and business will depend on what labor and management do.

Barring a resumption of the steel strike and a long tie up of the railroads, the 1960 business outlook is good—excellent for the first six months.

As to the two threatening strike situations:

Best guessing is that there will be no resumption of the steel strike. If so, only for a few days so that David McDonald can say he didn't sign up under the compulsion of a Taft-Hartley decree.

On the railroads—nothing more than a week or 10-day strike, if that. If there should be a walk-out it most likely will hit only the terminals or bridge lines.

After the first six months, there could be some slowdown, due to a combination of several things—chiefly the tight money and the shrinking farm income. The gross national product will cross the $500 billion mark—half a trillion dollars. That was not dreamed of not so many years back. But it also must be remembered this is a vastly different dollar—a fifty cent one compared to the pre-World War II dollar.

The auto industry—which sets the pace for the economy—should have a good year—between 6½ and 7 million cars, including about half a million imports.

Steel mill operations should roll around 95 per cent of capacity in the first half, as inventories are built up. Also to meet the current demand.

Employment should continue high and in some lines there will be shortages.

While there will be more talk about inflation, this should be less of a factor in the new year. Prices should stabilize—in fact they've been stable for more than a year, and an important item in the family budget—food—has been going down. One of the troubles with the government's cost of living index is that it includes the cost of having fun and running a car.

The stock market is harder to guess—any opinions on the market are just that—guesses.

The present levels give some concern, particularly with the ease with which every so often some almost unknown stock is jiggled. There are too many jiggles and manipulations, despite all the regulation and margin restrictions.

Our opinion is that the market will continue highly selective. That there are opportunities on both the short as well as the long side to make money. The job is picking the right ones for either a sale or purchase.

For the cautious, bonds offer opportunities for capital gains along with a very excellent return—5 per cent on Governments.

With the presidential election, 1960 will be an interesting year.

Letters To The Editor

Sir:

In today's editorial (December 18), you describe how a drug manufacturer testified before a Senate subcommittee that his profits are justified because they provide money for research. He said, "The consumers of today must contribute to the benefits which the future will bring."

May I state that the president of Merck Company has badly misrepresented the facts, and as Professor Lasagna of Johns Hopkins has said—I quote The Cumberland News of a few days ago—"The drug industry is pulling the wool over the consumer's eyes."

Medical research in the U. S. is financed first and foremost by grants of the U.S.P.H.S. Second in line are grants from private foundations like the Ford Foundation. Third in line are endowed private institutions like the Sloan-Kettering Institute. The drug industry is a beneficiary of research, as many new products are turned over to the pharmaceutical industry for mass production without patent fees.

Dr. Fleming, the discoverer of penicillin, Dr. Waksman, the discoverer of streptomycin, and Dr. Hench, the man who discovered cortisone, do not receive royalties from the immense sales of these products. Very little research is subsidized by the drug industry, and most of the subsidy is in form of raw materials provided for testing, which is no subsidy at all, since it is the drug manufacturer's prime interest that his product be evaluated.

Drug companies plow precious little profits back into research, but squander huge sums of money on unwanted, and very often, misleading advertising campaigns. How many people have listened to the expensive commercials on (Product A) on television, which are absolutely misleading. (Product A) has no advantage, whatsoever, over the plain drug called "aspirin"; there again the Company's achievement is not a bit better than several other companies' drug, marketed under the generic name acetylsalicylic acid.

In order to promote its products, the drug industry sustains a large number of detail men who, by gentle persuasion, try to influence the medical profession. Also, a number of slick "house organs," whose splendid pages sometimes surpass those of Life, are being published by the drug companies. All these promotional expenses are being borne by the unlucky public, and that is why cortisone costs ten times as much in this country as in Mexico. Incidentally, Mexican medical research is, in many respects, up to par with our medical research.

Pope Leads Campers To 42-39 Victory, Scoring 18 Points

HAGERSTOWN — Allegany High's Campers upended South Hagerstown's Rebels, 42-39, in a Cumberland Valley Athletic League contest, to hand the home team their first loss in the circuit since last night.

The triumph was the third in six games for Coach Chet Payne's Alco cagers while South High dropped its fourth decision in six contests. Allegany is now 2-3 in the CVAL while South sports a 2-1 league record.

Allegany hopped off to a quick 4-0 lead before the Rebels found the mark for eight consecutive points and an 8-4 first quarter lead. They came right back with 10 straight tallies to lead 14-8 at the close of the initial stanza.

The lead changed hands several times before South High grabbed a 23-22 lead at intermission. The see-saw battle found the Campers once more in front at 31-29 as the third quarter closed, then South knotted the count at 31-31 on Walker's goal as the fourth period opened.

The score was tied at 33 and 35 before Mervin Pope connected to put the visitors ahead to stay, 37-35. With the score 41-39, Gary Mulligan pitched in a foul goal with four seconds remaining to ice the verdict for Allegany.

Walker paced the South quint with 11 points. Pope tallied 18 for Allegany which won the game at the foul line, converting 16 of 26 tries to South's 5 of 16. South High held a 17-13 edged in field goals.

In a non-league battle North Hagerstown High's Hubs dropped a 48-42 decision to an Alumni yearling last night. Bob O'Brien had 17 points for the schoolboy five while Roger Kiesel tallied 11 for the Grads. The box score:

West Virginia Cagers Bow To California, 65 To 45

Bears Win Crown; West Is Stopped

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Unbeaten California, limiting All-American Jerry West to a single field goal with a superb defense, won the first annual Los Angeles Basketball Classic by beating West Virginia, 65-45. Wednesday night before a crowd of more than 12,000.

While California dominated both backboards and controlled the ball completely in the second half, previously undefeated West Virginia had to scramble all the way. West did not get a field goal until the final four minutes and 25 seconds of play and scored only eight points in perhaps his least effective collegiate performance.

Darrall Imhoff, the 6-10 California center, scored only five points but his rebounding and defense played a big part in the Cal win. Bill McClintock, a sturdy 6-4 forward, led all scorers for California with 23 points and long-shot star Tandy Gillis, guarded by West sank 18.

Imhoff was voted the three-day tournament's Most Valuable Player.

California led at the half, 29-24, and scored eight points in the second half to win.

Ring Discloses New Ratings Of Fighters

NEW YORK (UPI) —The Ring Magazine, announcing its annual ratings, disclosed Wednesday it had:

—Designated welterweight Charley Scott of Philadelphia the "most progressive fighter" of the year.

—Dropped Sugar Ray Robinson, middleweight champion (New York version) to number three among the world's 160-pounders.

—Named Ingemar Johansson of Sweden "fighter of the year" for the second straight time.

—Proclaimed champion Gene Fullmer (NBA version) the world's "outstanding" middleweight.

—Noted only two deaths among professional boxers worldwide resulting from ring injuries in 1959, perhaps a record low, and seven similar deaths worldwide among amateur boxers.

—Noted three world champions of such outstanding ability they had no logical contenders: flyweight Pascual Perez of Argentina, bantamweight Jose Becerra of Mexico and featherweight Davey Moore of Springfield, Ohio.

Young Scott of Philadelphia was selected the fighter who had made the most progress in 1959, despite his upset defeat by Cuban Benny (Kid) Paret in his last bout, Dec. 18, at Madison Square Garden.

That defeat snapped a six-bout winning string that had boosted 23-year-old Scott from obscurity to top man among the welterweight contenders, the Ring explained. Although the defeat by Paret lowered him to second among contenders, he still made more progress during the year than any other fighter, the magazine stressed.

Sugar Ray Robinson was dropped to number three among middleweights. Below Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, and Spider Webb of Chicago, because of inactivity. However, the Ring still went along with the New York State Athletic Commission and the Massachusetts commission in recognizing Sugar Ray as world champion.

Johansson was named "fighter of the year" because of his sensational heavyweight title triumph over Floyd Patterson on June 26. It was the second straight year Johansson had been given the "fighter" award by the Ring. Only three other boxers had earned a similar double: Rocky Marciano (1954 & '55), Ezzard Charles ('49 & '50) and Joe Louis ('38 & '39).

There were drops in attendance and a reduction in the number of fight-shows in New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Michigan, most European countries, South America, Australia and New Zealand.

Gator Bowl Rated Tossup

Georgia Tech Meets Arkansas Saturday

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Coach Frank Broyles figures he will have two All-America halfbacks going to his Arkansas Razorbacks in Saturday's Gator Bowl football game with Georgia Tech—a 1959 model and a 1960 model.

The '59 model is left halfback Jim Mooty who won All-America honors for the exploits which led Arkansas to a tie for the Southwest Conference title and the Gator Bowl.

The '60 model is Mooty's running mate, Lance Alworth, a dazzling sophomore who hit his stride in midseason and has been going great guns ever since.

"Alworth certainly should be an All-America in the future," Broyles said Wednesday. "He can do everything. He's a terrific runner with great speed and some good tricks. He's a fine receiver and punter and dangerous on the halfback pass play."

Coach Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech doesn't have two halfbacks with such glittering credentials. But he has a fistful of dangerous ball carriers — Floyd Faucette, Billy Williamson, Frank Nix, Chick Graning and Kenny Thompson.

The game, rated a tossup among the professional oddsmakers, will be televised nationally (CBS) a capacity crowd of 42,000 is expected for the 2:15 p.m. (EST) kickoff.

Match Set Sunday
Ruth's Tavern will meet the Fort Ashby VFW on the Vets' home boards Sunday at 3 p.m. in an Allegany County Men's Shuffleboard League match.

Tropical Judges Change Decision

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Tropical Park placing judges admitted a photo finish mistake Wednesday—and touched off a sudden scramble for discarded win tickets on strongly backed Teacher in the sixth race.

A few scuffles broke out and track police had to separate some angry rival claimants to the tickets tossed away an hour earlier.

In the sixth, with three horses finishing noses apart, the judges took a look at the photo and declared Deemster a $6 winner by a nose, with Teacher second and Whose Babu third.

An hour later, just before the ninth and last race, the track announcer told the crowd of 10,845 that the judges had decided after a second look at the sixth race photo that Teacher actually had finished in a dead heat with Deemster. The track said it would pay $5.30 win mutual on Teacher.

Almost as one, the fans stooped and scooped among the discards—many of which had been torn up by apparent losers.

Additional Money Recommended For Candlestick Park

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Controversy flared again over the Candlestick Park home of the San Francisco Giants baseball club after three arbitrators recommended contractor Charles Harney be paid an addition $435,785.

A. K. Browne, president of the San Francisco Stadium, Inc., the nonprofit group organized to finance the building of the park, indicated he would not accept the recommendation.

The $435,785 would be in addition to Harney's contract price of $7,046,000 for construction of the stadium. The arbitrators said the boost covered extras or increased scope of work at the park which will seat 42,500.

The arbitrators asked all parties meet with them before Jan. 6 and review the report.

Tropical Judges Change Decision

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Tropical Park placing judges admitted a photo finish mistake Wednesday—and touched off a sudden scramble for discarded win tickets on strongly backed Teacher in the sixth race.

A few scuffles broke out and track police had to separate some angry rival claimants to the tickets tossed away an hour earlier.

In the sixth, with three horses finishing noses apart, the judges took a look at the photo and declared Deemster a $6 winner by a nose, with Teacher second and Whose Babu third.

An hour later, just before the ninth and last race, the track announcer told the crowd of 10,845 that the judges had decided after a second look at the sixth race photo that Teacher actually had finished in a dead heat with Deemster. The track said it would pay $5.30 win mutual on Teacher.

Almost as one, the fans stooped and scooped among the discards—many of which had been torn up by apparent losers.

Additional Money Recommended For Candlestick Park

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Controversy flared again over the Candlestick Park home of the San Francisco Giants baseball club after three arbitrators recommended contractor Charles Harney be paid an additional $435,785.

A K. Browne, president of the San Francisco Stadium, Inc., the nonprofit group organized to finance the building of the park, indicated he would not accept the recommendation.

The $435,785 would be in addition to Harney's contract price of $7,046,000 for construction of the stadium. The arbitrators said the boost covered extras or increased scope of work at the park which will seat 42,500.

The arbitrators asked all parties meet with them before Jan. 6 and review the report.

Bridge Damage Inspected By Engineers

Engineers of the West Virginia State Road Commission yesterday inspected the Buzzard Fork Bridge, a 135-foot span of which was damaged and knocked into the South Fork of the Potomac River early Christmas morning.

One end of the span was knocked into the river when an automobile driven by Clyde Ours, 21, Cabins, W. Va., rammed into the main batter post of the structure causing one end of a span to collapse.

Damage was estimated at approximately $30,000. SRC spokesmen said, although the figure may go considerably higher if the bridge has to be replaced. A report on the findings of the engineers will be made to the SRC headquarters in Charleston.

The three-span bridge carries the Moorefield-Fisher road across the South Fork. A detour has been set up until repairs can be made to the structure, probably some time next spring.

Hearing Set On Water Rate Hike In Ridgeley

The Town of Ridgeley has been notified by the West Virginia Public Service Commission that a hearing will be held Friday, January 15, in Charleston on the town's request for a 25 per cent increase in its water rates.

According to Mayor Charles H. Fryer, Ridgeley filed its request on November 23 with the PSC, and was granted temporary approval for a flat surcharge of 25 per cent on the total quarterly bill of each customer, effective January 1.

The requested increase, the mayor explains, is deemed necessary since the City of Cumberland increased its charge to water customers this past summer.

Ridgeley's present rate structure has a flat rate of $6.25 for a minimum of 1,250 cubic feet of water each quarter. A sewage charge of 72 cents also is made each quarter, bringing the minimum rate per quarter to $6.97.

The 25 per cent increase has been granted on the water rate alone, Mayor Fryer said, bringing the minimum quarterly rate to $7.81, and the combined water and sewage charge to $8.53.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN: My niece, a lovely girl of 17, is leaving town until her out-of-wedlock child is born.

The family is sick over this. Her parents are religious people who have given her fine upbringing and the best of everything. To make matters worse, she was not going with any particular fellow and doesn't know who the baby's father is.

To meet her, Ann, you'd say she is a sweet, refined young lady—which brings me to the point of this letter. I've always said it's the innocent ones who get into trouble. The tramps are far too wise. So why does public opinion brand the unwed mother as a common trollop? The fact the girl didn't know how to avoid this trouble is proof of her virtue. Please print this for —A HEARTBROKEN FAMILY.

DEAR FAMILY: Sorry, but I don't have any silver cups lying around for sweet, innocent girls who have babies out of wedlock.

It's not ALWAYS the inexperienced ones who get caught. Many a wise apple who thought it couldn't happen to her lost her head, drank too many martinis, and met up with that well-known snake in the Garden of Paradise.

I'm sorry to say but too many young girls today don't want to hear the "Be moral, be pure, be good" routine. They need a better reason. So I tell 'em: Be smart. Keep your reputation. Keep your dignity. Save yourself for marriage. To do otherwise is stupid and it's risky.

DEAR ANN: Ma is 73, has a bad heart and can go any minute. Since she got sick three years ago I've had the whole family for Easter, Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner. I do all my own cooking and baking. The mob numbers 17. The grocery bill runs about $35 a dinner as they are all big eaters.

My two sisters-in-law are the laziest things God ever created. Also my own sister is no bargain. I'm just recovering from Christmas and Ma said "I'm looking forward to Easter. It's so wonderful to have the family together for dinner."

My husband says I should refuse to be the horse again. He says it's someone else's turn. I'm afraid an open argument might kill Ma. What is your advice?—THE CHUMP.

DEAR CHUMP: Have a pow-wow with the tribe and direct your remarks to the sisters-in-law and the "no bargain sister."

Explain you'll be glad to offer your home for the Easter dinner but they must help prepare the food, clean up after, and split the grocery bill four ways. If they refuse, invite Ma and tell them to come AFTER dinner—to spend the evening.

DEAR ANN: I was standing on the street corner waiting for a bus and a friend who was passing by offered to give me a lift. We were waiting at a stop light when the car behind plowed into us (bad brakes he said). I was knocked against the windshield. This caused considerable damage to my bridge work and the bill may be about $150.

My nephew who is in law school says the person who picked me up is responsible. Before I send the bill to him I thought I'd write and ask you—M.C.R.

DEAR M.C.R.: Ask a lawyer who has graduated and is in practice — and pay him for what he knows.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MISS LED: You were, indeed. You should not have asked HER to exchange the gift. Far better to have asked her permission and exchanged it yourself.

If alcohol is robbing you or someone you love of health and dignity, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

WASHINGTON (AP)—An eight-foot statue of the late Adm. Richard E. Byrd will be placed on the Virginia side of the Potomac River near the main entrance to Arlington Cemetery.

Byrd, a native Virginian, lies in the cemetery. He was buried there March 14, 1957, honored as the first man to fly over both poles.

The Virginia location was determined in part, however, by the fact that Washington is running short of good sites for statues.

Hearing Set On Water Rate Hike In Ridgeley

The Town of Ridgeley has been notified by the West Virginia Public Service Commission that a hearing will be held Friday, January 15, in Charleston on the town's request for a 25 per cent increase in its water rates.

According to Mayor Charles H. Fryer, Ridgeley filed its request on November 23 with the PSC, and was granted temporary approval for a flat surcharge of 25 per cent on the total quarterly bill of each customer, effective January 1.

The requested increase, the mayor explains, is deemed necessary since the City of Cumberland increased its charge to water customers this past summer.

Ridgeley's present rate structure has a flat rate of $6.25 for a minimum of 1,250 cubic feet of water each quarter. A sewage charge of 72 cents also is made each quarter, bringing the minimum rate per quarter to $6.97.

The 25 per cent increase has been granted on the water rate alone, Mayor Fryer said, bringing the minimum quarterly rate to $7.81, and the combined water and sewage charge to $8.33.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN: My niece, a lovely girl of 17, is leaving town until her out-of-wedlock child is born.

The family is sick over this. Her parents are religious people who have given her fine upbringing and the best of everything. To make matters worse, she was not going with any particular fellow and doesn't know who the baby's father is.

To meet her, Ann, you'd say she is a sweet, refined young lady—which brings me to the point of this letter. I've always said it's the innocent ones who get into trouble. The tramps are far too wise. So why does public opinion brand the unwed mother as a common trollop?

The fact the girl didn't know how to avoid this trouble is proof of her virtue. Please print this for —A HEARTBROKEN FAMILY.

DEAR ANN: Sorry, but I don't have any silver cups lying around for sweet, innocent girls who have babies out of wedlock.

It's not ALWAYS the unexpecting ones who get caught. Many a wise apple who thought it couldn't happen to her lost her head, drank too many martinis, and met up with that well-known snake in the Garden of Paradise.

I'm sorry to say but too many young girls today don't want to hear the "Be moral, be pure, be good" routine. They need a better reason. So I tell 'em:

Be smart. Keep your reputation. Keep your dignity. Save yourself for marriage. To do otherwise is stupid and it's risky.

DEAR ANN: Ma is 73, has a bad heart and can go any minute. Since she got sick three years ago I've had the whole family for Easter, Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner. I do all my own cooking and baking. The mob numbers 17. The grocery bill runs about $35 a dinner as they are all big eaters.

My two sisters-in-law are the laziest things God ever created. Also my own sister is no bargain. I'm just recovering from Christmas and Ma said "I'm looking forward to Easter. It's so wonderful to have the family together for dinner."

My husband says I should refuse to be the house angel. He says it's someone else's turn. I'm afraid an open argument might kill Ma. What is your advice?—THE CHUMP.

DEAR CHUMP: Have a pow-wow with the tribe and direct your remarks to the sisters-in-law and the "no bargain sister."

Explain you'll be glad to offer your home for the Easter dinner but they must help prepare the food, clean up after, and split the grocery bill four ways. If they refuse, invite Ma and tell them to come AFTER dinner—to spend the evening.

DEAR ANN: I was standing on the street corner waiting for a bus and a friend who was passing by offered to give me a lift. We were waiting at a stop light when the car behind plowed into us (bad brakes he said). I was knocked against the windshield. This caused considerable damage to my bridgework and the bill may be about $150.

My nephew who is in law school says the person who picked me up is responsible. Before I send the bill to him I thought I'd write and ask you—M.C.R.

DEAR M.C.R.: Ask a lawyer who has graduated and is in practice — and pay him for what he knows.

DEAR ANN: I was standing on the street corner waiting for a bus and a friend who was passing by offered to give me a lift. We were waiting at a stop light when the car behind plowed into us (bad brakes he said). I was knocked against the windshield. This caused considerable damage to my bridgework and the bill may be about $150.

My nephew who is in law school says the person who picked me up is responsible. Before I send the bill to him I thought I'd write and ask you—M.C.R.

DEAR M.C.R.: Ask a lawyer who has graduated and is in practice — and pay him for what he knows.

Industrial Stock Average Again Falls Short Of Peak

NEW YORK (UPI)—The industrial stock average tried for the second time Wednesday but failed to break through the 676.97, or 1.13 points under the all-time Aug. 3 peak.

The selling pressure, though slight, was enough to pull several of the leaders below their best levels, and the average closed at 676.97, or 1.13 points under the all-time Aug. 3 peak.

However, the market's overall advance, which gathered momentum from the opening, restored some $2,500,000,000 to stock valuations.

The advance also bore out what traders said could happen — that a typical year-end rally would grow out of re-investment of funds realized through recent tax-loss selling.

In spite of the still moot steel-wage question, there was enough in the news to keep traders in a bullish frame of mind.

For instance, the officials of three steel companies predicted steel output would reach a new high in 1960; Labor Secretary Mitchell said a rise in employment and a fall in unemployment was in the cards for next year and the federal reserve found the economy rising well and it revised its industrial production index the better to measure the rise.

Mystery Blast Shakes West End Of County

May Have Been Jet Plane's Sonic Boom

Some thought the blast felt last night in the area was premature New Year's celebrating, and some thought a jet plane may have broken the sound barrier over Allegany County, but no one seemed to come up with the answer.

The loud, but dull, short boom was felt and heard in the area at 5:42 p.m.

State Police at LaVale said they checked with area police and fire companies, to no avail.

A spokesman for the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company said a troubleshooter was sent to LaVale but did not locate any trouble.

City police did not know the whereabouts of the big noise, which seemed to have centered its effect in the Frostburg - Mt. Savage - LaVale sector of the county.

Allegany Ballistics Laboratory at Pinto was plagued with telephone calls, but knew nothing.

LaVale firemen said they thought at first that the blast was in their own basement.

In Frostburg, the concussion rocked a Christmas tree and rattled windows; in Cumberland it rattled windows, and in Mt. Savage, chandeliers were set swinging and windows and furniture rattled.

A Pinto Road resident said that ABL testing blasts are felt in that area but last night's noise was not felt.

A spokesman at the Cumberland Municipal Airport said there was a possibility the sound was caused by a jet breaking the sound barrier but he was not certain that was the cause of the "explosion."

Union Heads Rule Teamster Election Valid

The general executive board of the International Teamsters Union, together with the government-appointed board of monitors, ruled that the election held by Cumberland Local 453 in January 1958 was legal and valid.

The executive board through John L. England, secretary-treasurer of the international union, informed Local 453 that it had unanimously upheld the decisions handed down previously by the trial board of Local 453 and the executive board of Joint Council 40 in Pittsburgh.

In June 1958, charges of fraud were filed in the union by James K. Carbaugh, a former business agent in regard to the election that returned to office Charles E. Bramble, president; Charles E. Stutzman, vice president; and Bernard Harris, secretary-treasurer.

The election of the late Joseph Garlitz for recording secretary was not opposed.

On August 13, 1958, the charges were heard according to union procedure before a trial board composed of Joseph Freno, chairman, Harry May, Leo R. Fike, Ray Leighty, Reginald Mason, Howard Bush and Herbert Hillegas.

The trial board dismissed the fraudulent election charge for insufficient evidence.

The board also expelled Carbaugh from the union on the basis that the charges of a fraudulent election brought by the former business agent were not in good faith, and were activated by malice and with purpose of retaliation for being discharged as a business agent.

Carbaugh then appealed the trial board's decision in both cases, to the executive board of Pittsburgh Joint Council 40, which represents all Teamsters unions in the Pittsburgh district, of which Western Maryland is a part.

On December 4, 1958, the joint council board upheld the Cumberland trial board on both counts.

Subsequently through procedure set forth in the international constitution, the decision of the joint council was appealed by Carbaugh to the general executive board in Washington.

The board of monitors together with the top board ruled that the election was valid and legal, but reversed both boards on the action taken on Carbaugh.

The top board and the monitors ruled that Carbaugh had not been discharged legally according to the international constitution's Article 15, Section 2 as had been stated by both boards. The local was advised to conform to another section of the constitution in regard to any action taken on Carbaugh.

Equity Suit Seeks Deed Annulment

Bank Account's Return Sought

An equity suit, in which the complainant seeks among other things the annulment of a deed to two properties and return of a bank account, has been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Through her attorney, Earl E. Manges, Mrs. Maude F. Imes, RFD 1, Clearville, Pa., has brought the suit against Pearl Layman, also of RFD 2, Clearville, Pa., and the First National Bank and Trust Company of Cumberland.

The legal action seeks the annulment of a purported deed dated April 21, 1959 from Mrs. Imes to Pearl Layman and asks that, pending the termination of the suit, the respondent be prohibited from conveying or disposing of the two properties.

The suit also asks that the respondent be required to account for all the rents and profits received by her from the two properties and from Social Security checks issued to Mrs. Imes, and that the respondent and the bank be prohibited from withdrawing from the account any money until the ownership of the account may be determined. The suit also asked that the respondent be enjoined from selling furniture of Mrs. Imes until the ownership is determined.

Furniture was reported to have been moved from an eight-room dwelling at 27 Somerville Avenue, purchased by the respondent on January 28, 1942, to the respondent's home in Bedford County. The other property involved is an improved camp site.

The court has ordered that unless cause be shown within 15 days Pearl Layman may not dispose of the property or withdraw any money from a savings account. The bank was ordered not to allow any money to be withdrawn.

In the equity suit, the complainant, who is 68, contends she had been in the hospital and was recuperating, and was not fully aware of the transaction of business including the deed to the properties.

The practice, Chief Gaffney said, must be curtailed immediately, as the devices are in violation of the Maryland motor vehicle laws.

Motor scooters, he said, must be licensed and operators must have driving licenses.

Police said a number of the scooters have been taken off the streets recently. They are generally homemade and are powered through a bicycle chain attached to a small motor such as is used to operate washing machines.

Even if they were approved as safe, police said, they could not be used on the streets by the children now operating them, as one must be 16 to be eligible for a driver's license.

Counties Face $384,018 Loss Of State Aid

Hampshire, Berkeley May Be Penalized

Ten West Virginia counties, including Hampshire and Berkeley, will lose state aid totaling $384,018 this fiscal year unless some minor adjustments are made early in 1960, the State Board of Finance reported yesterday.

The penalties result from failure of the counties to raise non-utility property assessment up to 50 per cent of the 1958 appraisal conducted by the state tax commissioner.

Under the law, the counties were to come to within 35 per cent of the survey in 1956-57, 40 per cent in 1957-58, 45 per cent in 1958-59 and 50 per cent in 1959-60 and every year thereafter.

Fayette's Loss Greatest

Fayette County, with an assessment of only 45.3 per cent of the survey, suffered a loss in state aid of 4.7 per cent or $116,427. This was the largest penalty among the 10 counties.

Brooke County had an assessment of only 44.6 per cent of the survey. This will result in a 5.4 per cent penalty, or a loss of $26,781.

The other counties and the amounts they will lose as a result of penalties ranging between 1.25 per cent and 5.23 per cent are Barbour $7,425, Berkeley $40,892, Hampshire $5,444, Hancock $20,421, Mason $21,533, Monongalia $29,155, Summers $24,145 and Wyoming $91,795.

During the last fiscal year, nine counties lost a total of $226,930 for not raising assessments to within 45 per cent of the commissioners' survey.

Lose $913,321

Fayette, Greenbrier, Mason and Wyoming counties suffered a total of $175,326 in penalties during the 1957-58 fiscal year. In 1956-57, the first year the penalties were put in effect, penalties were placed against Fayette, Greenbrier, Hancock and Putnam Counties.

Only Fayette County has suffered penalties each year. The nine counties last year were Berkeley, Fayette, Greenbrier, Mercer, Nicholas, Putnam, Summers, Webster and Wood.

Since the penalty provision went into effect, counties have lost a total of $913,321.

Mystery Blast Shakes West End Of County

May Have Been Jet Plane's Sonic Boom

Some thought the blast felt last night in the area was premature New Year's celebrating, and some thought a jet plane may have broken the sound barrier over Allegany County, but no one seemed to come up with the answer.

The loud, but dull, short boom was felt and heard in the area at 5:42 p.m.

State Police at LaVale said they checked with area police and fire companies, to no avail.

A spokesman for the Cumberland and Allegany Gas Company said a troubleshooter was sent to LaVale but did not locate any trouble.

City police did not know the whereabouts of the big noise, which seemed to have centered its effect in the Frostburg-Mt. Savage-LaVale sector of the county.

Allegany Ballistics Laboratory at Pinto was plagued with telephone calls, but knew nothing.

LaVale firemen said they thought at first that the blast was in their own basement.

In Frostburg, the concussion rocked a Christmas tree and rattled windows; in Cumberland it rattled windows, and in Mt. Savage, chandeliers were set swinging and windows and furniture rattled.

A Pinto Road resident said that ABL testing blasts are felt in that area but last night's noise was not felt.

A spokesman at the Cumberland Municipal Airport said there was a possibility the sound was caused by a jet breaking the sound barrier but he was not certain that was the cause of the "explosion."

Union Heads Rule Teamster Election Valid

The general executive board of the International Teamsters Union, together with the government-appointed board of monitors, ruled that the election held by Cumberland Local 453 in January 1958 was legal and valid.

The executive board through John L. England, secretary-treasurer of the international union, informed Local 453 that it had unanimously upheld the decisions handed down previously by the trial board of Local 453 and the executive board of Joint Council 40 in Pittsburgh.

In June 1958, charges of fraud were filed in the union by James K. Carbaugh, a former business agent in regard to the election that returned to office Charles E. Bramble, president; Charles E. Stutzman, vice president; and Bernard Harris, secretary-treasurer.

The election of the late Joseph Garlitz for recording secretary was not opposed.

On August 13, 1958, the charges were heard according to union procedure before a trial board composed of Joseph Freno, chairman, Harry May, Leo R. Fike, Roy Leighty, Reginald Mason, Howard Bush and Herbert Hillgas.

The trial board dismissed the fraudulent election charge for insufficient evidence.

The board also expelled Carbaugh from the union on the basis that the charges of a fraudulent election brought by the former business agent were not in good faith, and were motivated by malice and with purpose of retaliation for being discharged as a business agent.

Carbaugh then appealed the trial board's decision in both cases, to the executive board of Pittsburgh Joint Council 40, which represents all Teamsters unions in the Pittsburgh district, of which Western Maryland is a part.

On December 4, 1958, the joint council board upheld the Cumberland trial board on both counts.

Subsequently through procedure set forth in the international constitution, the decision of the joint council was appealed by Carbaugh to the general executive board in Washington.

The board of monitors together with the top board ruled that the election was valid and legal, but reversed both boards on the action taken on Carbaugh.

The top board and the monitors ruled that Carbaugh had not been discharged legally according to the international constitution's Article 15, Section 2 as had been stated by both boards. The local was advised to conform to another section of the constitution in regard to any action taken on Carbaugh.

Counties Face $384,018 Loss Of State Aid

Hampshire, Berkeley May Be Penalized

Ten West Virginia counties, including Hampshire and Berkeley, will lose state aid totaling $384,018 this fiscal year unless some minor adjustments are made early in 1960, the State Board of Finance reported yesterday.

The penalties result from failure of the counties to raise non-utility property assessment up to 50 per cent of the 1958 appraisal conducted by the state tax commissioner.

Under the law, the counties were to come to within 35 per cent of the survey in 1956-57, 40 per cent in 1957-58, 45 per cent in 1958-59 and 50 per cent in 1959-60 and every year thereafter.

Fayette's Loss Greatest

Fayette County, with an assessment of only 45.3 per cent of the survey, suffered a loss in state aid of 4.7 per cent or $116,427. This was the largest penalty among the 10 counties.

Brooke County had an assessment of only 44.6 per cent of the survey. This will result in a 5.4 per cent penalty, or a loss of $26,781.

The other counties and the amounts they will lose as a result of penalties ranging between 1.25 per cent and 5.23 per cent, are: Barbour $7,425, Berkeley $40,892, Hampshire $5,444, Hancock $20,421, Mason $21,533, Monongalia $29,155, Summers $24,145 and Wyoming $91,795.

During the last fiscal year, nine counties lost a total of $26,930 for not raising assessments to within 45 per cent of the commissioners' survey.

Loss $913,321

Fayette, Greenbrier, Mason and Wyoming counties suffered a total of $175,326 in penalties during the 1957-58 fiscal year. In 1956-57, the first year the penalties were put in effect, penalties were placed against Fayette, Greenbrier, Hancock and Putnam Counties.

Only Fayette County has suffered penalties each year. The nine counties last year were Berkeley, Fayette, Greenbrier, Mercer, Nicholas, Putnam, Summers, Webster and Wood.

Since the penalty provision went into effect, counties have lost a total of $913,321.
